act on it loudly. It is telling you to notice it, and to protect it.

Build a small wall of quiet around it. Tell one person, or no one. Write it down in a place no one else reads. Let it become warm before you ask it to become useful.

If it appears as Shadow, the spark has been dragged into daylight before it was ready, or smothered by the demand that it justify itself. The remedy is not to abandon it — the remedy is to take it back into the dark and feed it gently until the heat returns.

THE SPORE ORACLE
WALKING THE SPIRAL YEAR

This glyph appears when something must be surrendered so that something new may emerge.

The grave is open.

Not to bury possibility.

Shadow

Fearing decay so deeply we refuse the soil our own dying could feed.

A Question to Sit With

Essence

Keeper of Deep Foundations. Mycorth dwells beneath the forest floor where hidden networks connect all living things. He appears when stability is needed and reminds us that great growth depends upon strong roots.

The Teaching

Mycorth dwells deep beneath the forest floor where roots intertwine and hidden networks connect all living things.

He appears during seasons when stability is required.

When life feels uncertain.

When foundations need strengthening.

Mycorth reminds us that great growth depends upon strong roots.

His lesson is simple

Grow deep before you grow tall.

“Mycorth of root and stone, Teach me patience. Teach me depth. Teach me to trust what grows unseen.”

Where in my life do stronger foundations need to be built?

Shadow

Stagnation. Roots that refuse to ever bloom.
